SCDOT Closing a 70-Mile Section of I-95 between Florence and I-26

According to the South Carolina Department of Transportation, our neighbor Department has closed an almost 70-mile section of Interstate-95 between Florence, S.C. and I-26. SCDOT will also shut down sections of other interstates around Columbia, S.C. South Carolina transportation officials are trying their best to keep the traffic re-routed on interstate systems within the state network.

Detour Plan for S.C.

I-95 southbound traffic will be diverted onto I-20 and to Columbia. Motorists will travel around Columbia on I-77 and then back down I-26 towards Charleston to reconnect to I-95. The reverse will work for I-95 northbound. SCDOT has also announced they are rerouting a short section of I-20 within the Columbia area to I-77. Transportation officials are battling flood conditions, while trying to keep some kind of traffic movement happening around Columbia.
